

The Schottenstein Prize 2023 Nomination Form

Eligibility

This prestigious prize provides national and international recognition to a physician or biomedical scientist who has made extraordinary and sustained leadership contributions to improving healthcare; or who has successfully pursued innovative biomedical research with demonstrated translational benefits to patient care. Those honored will be practitioners and/or scientists whose accomplishments and contributions have taken place over a career of dedicated and focused scientific discovery. The prize is awarded biennially. All nominations must be received by April 10, 2023. Please note that by accepting the award, the 2023 Schottenstein Prize Laureate will agree to attend a two-day series of scheduled events including presentations and research recognition ceremony(s) at The Ohio State University (in the event of pandemic-related travel restrictions an alternate format or timeline for visit will be arranged).

Nomination Process

The nomination process is a two-step process. No nomination will be considered unless both steps have been completed. Deadline for all entries is April 10, 2023.

1. Complete the required fields on the following page regarding the nominee and the nominator.
2. These items must be sent for the nominee to be considered:

Note that we may contact the nominator for additional reference materials after the nominations have been reviewed.*

- A letter from the nominator describing the primary reasons by which the nominee merits consideration for the prize. Relevant criteria might include scientific innovation, creativity, leadership, education, dedication and importance of the nominee's work to the field of cardiovascular research. Consideration will also be given to the nominee's role as mentor of young researchers and/or clinicians.
- Nominee's curriculum vitae

Send all required documentation via email to Jessica.Wise@osumc.edu. In the subject line enter the name of the nominee along with Schottenstein Prize Nomination Information.
